

Cornell University
Law School

Lawyers in the Best Sense

CORNELL eRULEMAKING INITIATIVE
(CeRI)

Myron Taylor Hall
Ithaca, New York 14853-4901
T: 607.255.8783
F: 607.255.9173
E: regulationroom@cornell.edu

March 29, 2013

To Whom It May Concern:

Adrian Ababei has worked as a full-time Drupal developer on the rebuild of the RegulationRoom.org site since December 2012. We are rebuilding our site from the ground up with a new design and for the first time on the Drupal platform, and since we were working on a tight time frame and our in-house developers had no prior Drupal development experience, we needed someone with excellent Drupal skills who could hit the ground running. Adrian has turned out to be perfectly suited to our needs.

RegulationRoom.org is a research site as well as a public participation platform, and as such has a large number of functional requirements that need to be encoded in a custom Drupal module. With his deep knowledge of the Drupal API and contributed Drupal modules, in addition to his problem-solving skills, Adrian has implemented the required features accurately and efficiently. He works systematically, diligently, and promptly, and if anything the challenge has been for me to keep up with his pace and funnel new assignments to him as quickly as he is ready for them.

Adrian also has excellent communication and teamwork skills. Despite the fact that he telecommutes and we have not met face-to-face, communication has always been smooth, clear, and efficient.

In summary, we have been extremely pleased with the work Adrian has done on our project, and I can recommend him without hesitation as a Drupal developer.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Younes
Lead Technologist
Cornell eRulemaking Initiative
Cornell Law School

